7 FROSTY GERMAN SAYINGS TO MAKE YOU A WINTER WORDSMITH

5. Die Kuh vom Eis holen

If someone tells you "du hast die Kuh vom Eis geholt" (You've got the cow off the ice), they're probably not being literal (unless you're a dairy farmer next to a frozen lake). Instead, this rather wintry idiom really means that you've saved the day. If someone manages to pull something out the bag as you teeter on the edge of disaster, that's the way to thank them.
