OCTOBER 3—DAY OF GERMAN UNITY

HOW TO CELEBRATE GERMAN UNITY DAY NATIONWIDE

Berlin

Where: Brandenburg Gate

When: October 2nd at 10am until October 4th

Berliners celebrate the very first German Unity Day on October 3rd 1990.

The German capital is perhaps one of the most visible reminders of the country's Cold War past, where reunification meant the end of a divided city once and for all.

The iconic Brandenburg Gate is a significant part of this history - the Berlin Wall once ran alongside the monument and it's where Ronald Reagan delivered his famous speech declaring “Mr Gorbachev, tear down this wall!”

So it is no surprise that the focal point of this year's celebration will be the Gate, kicking off on Friday free concerts performing “20 years of top hits”.

On German Unity Day itself, the street fest will continue with more parades, concerts, karaoke and beer gardens, ending on Sunday with German Schlager music, including Olaf Henning and Ute Freudenberg.
