

“Bei uns ist immer was los!”

der 31. OKTOBER —TAG VOR ALLERHEILIGEN / HALLOWEEN

„Streich oder Süßigkeit!“ / „Trick or Treat!“
„süß oder saueres“

For the Halloween season, the studio has been kitted out to resemble a real-life horror film, with characters from several classic horror films and some original faces roaming around, waiting to jump out at you.

As well as photo opportunities with Pinhead and Chucky, several attractions are open such as a live maze, simulator and refreshment stands.

Just make sure to look over your shoulder, as Pennywise may be behind you...

Darmstadt

Nowhere offers a Halloween atmosphere quite like the Burg Frankenstein near Darmstadt, a 1000-year-old castle ruin thought to be the inspiration for Mary Shelley's Frankenstein.

Since 1977, the Castle has offered a Halloween spectacle, the first of its kind in Germany. Within the castle walls during the Halloween party, there is a panorama restaurant, food and drink stalls, a monster bar, VIP lounge and gift shop.

Across 12 infamous scare zones, there are 100 monsters lurking including Pennywise, Freddy Krueger, Michael Myers, and beings from the underworld. The three new scare zones for this year are entitled The Clown's House, Death Zone, and Chainsaw.

This event is certainly not for the faint hearted, though if you're a thrill seeker who loves a good adrenaline-rush, this is the Halloween party for you.

Berlin

According to the self-confessed “Home of Halloween”, the historical Berlin Dungeon, there is no better place to be in Berlin to enjoy all things spooky. This year, the Dungeon is putting on a special Halloween show: Will you survive the curse of the witch?

The belief in witchcraft is rooted deep in both German and wider human history. During the Middle Ages, when science was not advanced enough to explain illness, death or forces of nature, society would often suspect that witchcraft or black magic was behind it.

Visitors to the Dungeon will embark on a 70-minute journey through time between Hackescher Markt to Alexanderplatz, as you are transported to the 16th century, where many witches were believed to have roamed the Berlin streets.

Along the way, you'll encounter several characters such as a vengeful witch hunter, a helpless farmer and a devilish “white woman”. By the end of the journey, will you survive the gaze of not only the witch, but the fanatical witch hunter?
