

WAS ESSEN DIE DEUTSCHEN? / WHAT DO THE GERMANS EAT?

10 DELICIOUS FOODS YOU HAVE TO TRY WHILE LIVING IN GERMANY

2. Käsespätzle

We step over the border from Bavaria to Baden-Württemberg for this heavy, sinful dinner. Spätzle is Germany's very own form of pasta. It is essentially small pellets made of eggs, flour and water. It can be served as a side to Schweinebraten (roast pork), but is most famous when it takes centre stage in Käsespätzle.

And the meal does exactly what it says on the tin - it is a pile of Spätzle covered in melted cheese. The best recipes mix together Bergkäse, Appenzeller, Emmentaler and a couple of other local cheeses. Fried onions crown this heart attack-inducing delight.
